

“Queen of Chili” Jane Butel

The Fourth Estate Restaurant
National Press Club of Washington
529 14th Street, NW, Washington, DC
Tuesday, February 24, 2009, at 6:30 p.m.

A Wine Dinner Event Featuring Her Latest Book

a second edition with over 130 NEW hot recipes

Travel + Leisure calls this edition “an elegant celebration.”

Known internationally as an authority on Southwest cuisine, Jane Butel has been proving to the world since the 60s that chili is more than nature’s flame thrower. It’s actually a very healthy food. Those spicy chiles do more for you than ignite a fire. They are filling you with nutrition, unclogging your vascular system by auguring the plaque, decreasing your appetite, stimulating metabolism, and even strengthening the immune system for its battle against diseases.

The New York Times* has officially declared Jane Butel’s credentials “authentic.”

The daughter and granddaughter of accomplished home economists, Ms. Butel is the author of 18 cookbooks, teacher and television personality. Her most recent television project, Jane Butel’s Southwestern Kitchen, was presented to public television stations nationwide by KUHT-TV, PBS Houston.

National Press Club Chef Jim Swenson will prepare a tasty, 5- course dinner, based on her cookbook recipes, from a spicy beginning to a sweet ending. Come and enjoy a nutritious meal of spice and flavor that will be long remembered while learning from Jane Butel what makes chili healthy and from Southwestern wine writer and “Cooking with Jane” Columnist Jim Hammond, what wines best go with it.

The Fourth Estate

At The National Press Club

Books will be sold by Barnes and Noble

Jane Butel will be available to personally autograph books.

No outside books are allowed.

This is a fundraiser to benefit the Eric Friedheim Library.

Cost: $70 NPC members; $93 non-member (includes tax and gratuity)

For reservations call 202-662-7638 or e-mail fourthestate@press.org

Credit card required with reservations.

For press, contact: Joe David, 540/428-3175, jdavid@bfat.com